Grant table that may cast some light on the matter : his assumption and his system is necessarily perfect. Other forms of government are creatures of expediency, but a Theocracy is found ed immutably in the right, and must be infal lible.

It is true that our blue-law fathers of Connecticut resolved to adopt the law of God until they had time to prepare a better-but that probably was because the Jewish law was not framed with an especial adaptation to the political necessities of Connecticut .-Think however of "young Israel" rebelling against the laws of Moses as sanctioned by divine approval, and setting their authority at defiance because they had not been submit ted to a popular vote-were not framed by the Elders in counsel so as to embody the nation's wisdom-were not backed by power, sustained by tradition, or consenant with Israel's idea of destiny.

That in this age, and in this country there should be a government reviving the patriarchal customs of the Jews in the days of Solomon-claiming to exist by the immediate or dination of God, and exacting of its subjects the homage due to it as such, is one of the strange contradictions history so often pre-

We did not however intend in this article to enter into a di-quisition upon government and laws, but simply to record an anecdote of Brigham Young and another of one of his quondam Elders, Sam. Brannan, since a gain bler and Cylifornia Millionaire,

In the very great scarcity of money at Sa Lake, Brigham found it necessary to provide some kind of a circulating medium, and dewised a frecal institution which should issue notes redeemable in sums of a hundred dollars in cattle and other line stock. The number of adults who cannot read and write are compiled from the census of 1850, and the vote given is that of the last election. By comparing the latter with the former, and scanning the majorities, it will be readily seen why the Democrats have such a sweeping tri umph in these counties. Wherever the greatest ignorance prevails in that portion of Illinois there the Democratic majority is the larg gest. Railroads will, however, soon introduce light into that benighted region, and schools for the education of the young will eventually break in on the rule of the Democracy in the time that is to come.

IT A young man named B. B. Ball, of Cypress, Miss, was ordered by his father to leave home, under the penalty of being cowhided The father attempted to fulfil his threat, when the young man's mother interceded in his behalf, and was struck upon the heaf several times by the father, which the son seeing resolved to die by self-destruction rather than but as the cattle for its redemption were sent live and see his mother and himself imposed upon.
